

I didn't sleep that much yesterday because of my sleeping problem. At midnight, Aravind and I went to the Tim Hortons coffee shop near my home after seeing it on google. Google told me the shop was open. But when we reached the shop, it was closed. Opposite that shop, we saw a bar and it was open when we saw it. we both went inside the bar and find out only black people are there we were pretty scared and came out quickly to the room. We both spoke about our English skills for a certain point time. I slept at around half-past two and woke up at half-past four to go for my shift. I called my parents when I was at the bus stop and told them that I am going for my shift and I cannot pick up your call. I went to my shift and worked for 7 and half hours by taking two breaks. I worked very hard because of the long weekend as well as it's a busy shop. I came home and spent my afternoon and evening doing nothing rather than wasting. Right now, I am writing this. once I am done with this, I will call my parents, check the Linkedin Learning, eat my dinner, brush my teeth, and will go to sleep after some time.