

I didn't sleep well due to the overtime spent watching the big bang theory web series. I woke up at half-past seven and came back from my terrace and straight away went to the bathroom to do my daily chores. After completing the bathroom section, I drank warm water and did the walking part while reading the newspaper. I started reading the BBC news on my laptop and had my breakfast watching the big bang theory. While I was reading its end with us book, the courier person came and delivered the order which my father ordered a couple of days back. I paid money through phonepe and it cost me around RS.2157. I completed the book reading, ate my lunch, spent reading the java tutorial, and searched the colleges in Canada. in the afternoon, my father came, watched the crocs, and went to his uncle's house to have lunch. I did my leg exercises and bathed and read the swift language blog. I am thinking of buying an AirPods because in a few days my classes are going to start and I really need to buy that. After this diary completion, I will change the font from Arial to some other because I like change and I would love to see new colors. I will be having my dinner, watching the web series, and feeling guilty for today's things for this night.