

I woke up at noon and watched the match after my bathroom schedule. After the cricket match, I kept the rice in the cooker and started making the chicken curry. While doing that, I got a call from an unknown number; I picked up that call to know who it was and found that It was Dheeraj. He called me because he was going to the states to shop there. So, he asked me whether I wanted anything like a parka or a puffer. I face-timed a few times to see the clothes and told him to buy the ones he showed to me. After that, I didn't do much and spent much of my time doing nothing. In the evening, I called Laxman and told him I was ready with DevOps basics. He suggested I make a document out of whatever I understood. I ate my dinner and started studying. After a while, Dheeraj returned from the states with my jackets, and I tried them to see the fitting of the clothes. Right now, I am done with brushing and cleaning my schedule. Once I am done writing, I will watch videos on youtube, and then I will sleep.