

I woke up again at 5:30 am because of college. I brushed my teeth and then ate four cheese bagels toasted with butter and chocolate ice cream. Once I completed my breakfast, I got ready and went to college. In college, it was fine, and I didn't do as much work as I expected. But, I studied my daily newspaper and books. Later, after college, My friends and I came to my home, and we ate biriyani and ice cream. We spent some time in my room for a while, and we went to the Kennedy station because they needed to go home, and I needed to go to the tailor shop to do the stitching to my pant at the bottom. The tailor told me to come in the evening to collect the pant. I boarded the bus and went to the shopper's drug mart to buy some things for Mahesh. I came home, bathed, and went to the shop to pick up the pant, and I returned home. Right now, I am writing this one. Once I finish this, I will search for a winter jacket and puffer and then eat my lunch. so I am thinking of studying DevOps today night before I go to sleep.