

I woke up early and got ready within a matter of time before going for an interview. I went to the library to print out the documents such as my resume, and license. Lastly, I boarded the bus to the location to attend the interview. I went to their office, filled out a few details, and attended the interview. They asked me a few questions regarding why I needed the job and I answered all the questions he asked. he finally said one thing to me that they cannot offer the position because of no experience. I felt bad and came home after that. I spoke to my parents while I was having tiffin at 12 pm. After the call, I received a call from another security company and he told me to attend an interview tomorrow. I am very hopeful about this particular job. Later, I ate my lunch and spent the entire afternoon doing nothing but watching Netflix. In the evening, I started writing this diary while I was keeping a hold of the RBC call. I dont know whether I continue this call for so long or not. I will be emailed her once I am done with this. I will do my assignments tonight and have dinner. This is what my day looks like to me. Nothing interesting but fully boring in this filthy mess.