

I woke up before the alarm sound come into my life. I directly got into the class after the bathroom schedule and I got a message from donia that she will not be active in the class today. I said okay and I joined the class. The professor first told me the demo of the previous exercises. I thought I found some time and went for the brushing part. I came back after twenty minutes and I realised my system lost its internet connection and was off the whole time when I was brushing. Then I connected the network and joined the class. Right then, he was explaining some other concepts and I heard a little bit of that at the end. he gave me the assignment and I worked hard on that but I am unable to find out the answer to a few things. I left at that point and ate lunch. I got ready and went out to the bank along with my brother to the RBC. Meanwhile, when I approached the terminal to catch the bus or train, there was some problem going on. The whole part was stopped and within a few minutes after I went there, they opened and we both caught the train. I did the process, came out, went to the fish aquarium shop, and went to the grocery store near my home to buy some groceries. after a while, came home, had a bath, and worked on the assignment. While I was doing my assignment, my brother came and asked me to give company to the pet store because of the unfortunate death of the fish he bought yesterday. I said I have work and he took Aravind and went. I managed somehow and did the assignment. I submitted it. I tried opening my bank account from the RBC and I cannot access it due to some other issues. I tried contacting them and after a long time, they said I need to visit a bank because of security issues. I ate my dinner while having discussions about various things in life. every discussion I made with someone, turned out to be a good discussion and I really felt I am making a good speech although I hesitate. Right now, I am about to sleep after this.
