

I came back to my house and slept on my sofa again because of the rain in the early morning. I slept and did my daily rituals and proceeded with the project after my bath and breakfast. I didn't do my project although I understood the concept. But, in the morning, I spent reading the newspapers and ugly love book. In the afternoon, I didn't do much and spent time watching web series and studying the SQL language. In the evening, I attended the class and it was about the group project and a little bit about tomorrow's final exam. I contacted people from several groups and got the required PHP for our project. I decided to work on Saturday and I quit the class after the confirmation from the professor. While I was in the class, Mahesh babu called and asked me about the flight ticket. I ate and writing this diary while watching the IPL match.