

I slept at half-past two and woke up at 11 am. When I woke up, It was raining and I did my daily chores and started reading the newspaper and book. I was about to complete the daily quota of book reading and suddenly, we were having lunch because it's biriyani. Dheeraj came home when we were eating and said he is going to the cricket match. I asked him if I will come and see the match and he took me to the match in the car. During the journey, we talked about the jobs in security and he called one girl regarding the job process. I went to the match, ate some food such as cake because for one person's birthday, pizza slice, and I didn't eat biriyani or drink the cool drinks because I already had some free foodstuff. I enjoyed the match from starting to ending even though I like high-scoring matches and the match turned out to be a low-scoring match. The match completed and the team I supported and my brother's team won. We came back home and had a bath. Right now, after the diary, I need to sleep after spending some time on my mobile.
