

It was a good day according to the class because of the programs I wrote and executed. I had a nap and I went for laundry with my roommates after lunch. While we were waiting for the clothes, we went outside and bought some samosas for us. After that, we removed our clothes and put them in a dryer and went to our room. In the room, I had a bath, studied, took the clothes to my room, and went outside along with my brothers to the supermarket. In the night, Mahesh's friend ordered mutton biriyani for all of us and it was beautiful and delicious. I asked about the price and he said it was 80 dollars and I am literally shocked after hearing that. I had a good conversation with them at the table for one to two hours.