

I woke up and attended the class. It was just an installation of tools and writing a simple basic program. I completed that exercise fastly and went to college to pick up the id card. I came back, ate my lunch, and spent some time taking a nap and studying java. In the evening, I went outside and did the uber eats delivery. Initially, It was okay. In the end, I realised, I walked almost 10 kilometres for 2 orders and earned 7.50 dollars for both orders. When I came home, I was fully tired and went to check on the uber to see how much I earned. Later I found out that I did uber bicycle instead of walking. I ate dinner and went to sleep.
