

I woke up at 7 am because I dumped the college for today and have a training session with pillar security.so, I woke up at 7 am and got ready within an hour and started the way to Bloor-Yonge street. when I was eating my breakfast, Aravind woke up and we had a conversation for a few minutes. I reached there on time and I am the first person to reach there for training. The place was really beautiful and we had beautiful chairs to sit in and listen to the class.in the afternoon, he gave one hour break and I went to McDonald's and ate two burgers there. in the end, I got my uniform and I had a conversation with the dispatch team regarding my training. I came home and directly, I went to the hair saloon shop to cut my hair. I came home and bathed. after that, I went to Walmart to buy some things related to face and ice cream etc. I did that and came back home. right now, I am sitting and writing this diary. once I am done with this, I will browse online and eat my dinner. then, I will brush my teeth, read the newspaper and probably sleep.
