

Last night, I didn't sleep properly because of the nap I took in the afternoon. Somehow, I slept at 2 or 3 am and I woke up at 6 am to go for my shift in the Tim Hortons. I got ready and boarded the bus using my student transit pass for the first time. I reached there early and spent 10 minutes on mobile. Later, I started my shift for the day. I brewed the coffee, helped maha because she was having a leg problem, and dumped the garbage. I took coffee when my shift was over and started home. Maha told me thanks for the day because of the help that I did. I opened my mobile and found three missed calls. Two are from Krishna and one is from mangal. I called Krishna and told him I will call once I reach home. I spoke to mangal throughout my journey and cut the call when I was near my home. We spoke about various things regarding the full stack developer and some funny things about us and our friends. sai ram video called me and we spoke about a couple of things about our college and our friends. Later, I called Krishna and we talked about how he can move to Canada and what are the courses for him to study here. I ate my lunch afterwards and watched TV for a bit. While I was watching Tv, I slept. I woke up at 6 pm and made dinner with the help of Mahesh. At half-past eight, I bathed and trimmed my beard. One thing I forgot to tell you is I received next week's schedule from the coffee shop. Right now, I have done reading the newspaper, reading the daily quota of books, and brushing my teeth. I dont know what to do after this. I am thinking of watching tv or watching youtube videos.