

I slept outside of my house rather than on my terrace because of the rain. I got ready and did 30 minutes walk and had a wonderful bath. Once I completed my breakfast, I started reading books, and newspapers the entire morning. At half-past twelve, I ate my lunch and watched some topics on SQL language. In the evening, there was rain and I had a class but we don't have power. Initially, I attended a class through mobile data and when we got power, I attended through WIFI. it was about preparation and a group project assignment that we did for my class. the professor told me about the midterm exam and what topics to expect from the question paper. the class was extended by a few minutes in the end. I didn't do much afterwards. I ate my dinner and browsed my mobile on news topics and went to sleep.