

I brought down the bedsheets as well as the pillow cover from my bed and placed them near the washing machine and proceeded to the washroom after picking up my toothbrush from my verandah. I completed the bathroom rituals and had my warm water and went to walk for 30 minutes. I read the newspapers, had my breakfast, and completed the discovery of India book. After the book reading, I went outside and cut the nails and read its end with us book for half an hour. I had my lunch and spent one-hour watching youtube videos as well as the big bang theory web series. At around 2 pm, I did my java one-hour tutorial and read the SQL blog. I had a difficult while reading in the afternoon because my brother came home from school, took RS.500 from my mother, and went outside to bring the ice cream. It turns out he went to a party by taking another person's bike. So, my father is constantly making phone calls to other people for information. In the evening, I did my leg exercise and went to the bathroom to bathe. While I was going to pick up the soap, I saw a lizard in the bathroom, started feeling uncomfortable, and took the water and threw the lizard out of the washroom with the help of water. At around quarter past six, I read the swift language and started writing this diary. Once I complete this, I have to watch the videos of the PPR timeline and have to watch the match between RCB VS SRH. I will be doing my dinner, brushing, and everything. Why I am not writing this diary after my dinner is because I have little time and I want to use the time.