

In the morning, four people tried to wake me up. Firstly, it was a call from Wendy's inviting me for the interview and I told them no. Secondly, it was a call from a fraud call from anonymous. When I lift the call and it was saying to me that I made two payments through my credit card which were around 500 dollars and they are asking me to confirm. Thirdly, a call from someone I forget. And finally, I woke up to this person who came and woke me and asked me to come to the grocery store to buy the naans. I woke up and went to the bathroom. While I was doing my brush, I got a call from the security guard company that they reviewed my application, willing to give me to job if I do all things. I attended the phone interview. At last, they told me that they will provide shifts at random. I told them no because of that reason and went to the grocery store to buy the naans. We came back home, ate lunch, I completed the Tim Hortons videos, and had a nap in bed. I woke up, and read the book and newspaper. at 7 pm, I had a beautiful bath and watched web series. I made some naans for dinner and I ate while watching the TV. right now, I am writing this one. Once I am done with this, I have to do a couple of things. The first one is studying, and the second one is brushing. I will start studying at half-past ten I guess but I am not sure when I am going to start.