

It was a day that I used for both productivity and uselessness. I woke up at around half past ten and I got ready. I ate breakfast and started reading the books and newspaper in the morning. After lunch, I started watching the movie in Dheeraj's room in the afternoon. I watched the film for a bit and began studying the swift language. I spent some time on some things, spoke with Lokesh for one hour and got to know the smack of delivery. I contacted the roommates and conveyed the info to them and they were damn excited to see this. I spent the remaining time before the order on various things. Right now, I have ordered the food and waiting for the delivery. I am damn excited about how it goes. As I told you before, I made a progress in learning the language and I will try to work hard for it. I will come and write the remaining part of the diary after I got to know something about the money. I received the food and waited for 10 minutes to start the chat with doordash customer service. At the start, based on my input, he said he will give 19 dollars. Later, I chatted with customer care for 10 to 15 minutes. In the span of time, he is ready to give $73 and I took the money and ate the food.