

The sun was falling and irritating me in the morning. For this particular reason, I have to wake up and have to come down from my terrace. I did my bathroom chores as well as walked for half an hour. After my walking, I ate my breakfast and read the ugly love book in the morning for 2 hours. At around 10 past 11, I watched youtube videos about politics and I learnt that the pressure that Rana Ayyub is currently facing from the current federal government. I think at the end of the video, we lost power due to the rain that are falling. I and my family realised we are not going to get power any time soon. In the afternoon, I downloaded Gujarat Riots books and read them on my mobile for 2 chapters. We got power around 4 pm and I watched the pending videos on youtube and saw the flights from India to Canada. after my bath, I attended my college seminar and learnt the same old things which I knew already from my research. They were pretty fast and completed the class within an hour. After my class, I enjoyed some time spent watching TV, eating my dinner, had conversations with my father and my brother.
