

I woke up at 5:30 am because I needed to go to college. Initially, I ate my breakfast and went to the bathroom to clean my face. at around 7:00 am, I started from my room to the bus stop to catch the bus to college. I reached college and went to the class. The strength was a bit low, and the professor took attendance in the first period. Lokesh and I bunked the course and came home when he gave the first break. In my home, I started reading the newspaper, studying the book for a bit, and cooking chicken for my lunch. at around 1:00 pm, I bathed and prepared for my security shift. It was a hectic task to get there because it was my first day, and I am terrible at maps. Due to this, I reached the on time in the site rather than early. The security shift was beautiful. They gave me a building look all the time. I have every security camera in front of me, and I got briefed about the job on day 1. I came back home and ate my dinner. Within a few minutes, I went to sleep.
