

Today, I spent my time doing quality and productive work such as completing assignments, watching swift language tutorials, and getting inspiration from people. I woke up and did my daily chores and worked on the swift language in the morning. After my lunch, again, I spent my time working on the same swift language. In the meantime, there was a procession going on in my village. This is about the goddess gangamma's mother's ceremony. With the money that is collected from the people, there is a construction of temple and today is the day, they are getting the stones which we consider as a gangamma mummy. Because of all this, my parents went to perform or participate in the ceremony. In the evening, at around half-past five, I went to the terrace, completed the assignment, and submitted it. I ate my dinner and wrote this diary. Once I complete this, I will have to complete my night ritual and watch videos regarding the Canadian travel.
