

I woke up at 4:30 am to go for my shift. when I woke up, Aravind asked me where you are going. I said to him that I am going for my shift and he was shocked because I woke up at 4:30 am. Even though my shift starts at 6:30 am. I picked the wrong bus in the morning and I thought I am gonna be late. instead, I reached a few minutes early for my shift. I started the shift and worked in the front for a couple of hours.in the end, while I was doing the garbage. parth came and said to me that we have to do the stacking. I helped him and learnt the stacking process. I ended up and came home after that. I ate chapati in the afternoon. I took a nap and woke up after 3 hours. I bathed after waking up and started working on the project. I actually did almost all things in the two view controllers which are the front page and map kit. I am stuck with one simple thing how to add images to an array in swift. I literally spent more time on this. Right now, I spoke to parents on the video call and writing this. Aravind told me that he is bringing pizza for our dinner. I am just waiting for that. once I am done with that, I will brush my teeth, watch a few videos on youtube, and work on xcode.
