

I am writing my diary a bit earlier than usual because of several reasons. I will tell you all the reasons in the upcoming passages that I write.

When I woke up, nobody was there on my terrace and I arranged my bed and went home and did the daily ritual which I do everyday. After my bathroom part, I drank warm water and went for a walk. Then I read the newspaper on my mobile phone because we didn't get wifi signals from our router for the past one days. I had my tiffin and my father called me and gave the amount of whooping RS. 250000 to deposit in my bank and transfer the amount of RS. 200000 to electrician and RS. 50000 to my father account. My parents and my sister went to the Dmart to buy the monthly groceries. I started my journey to kodur by bike. Firstly , I went to the bank and wrote the application form to deposit. I waited in the line to deposit money and in front of me there was a guy, got an enormous amount. I had to wait in the queue for half an hour to complete the deposit of that particular man. I got my turn and gave the money as well as the deposit form. The guy spoke to me in English, told me to open the app on my mobile and I did that and he showed me a shortcut to deposit the money without writing the form. While I was depositing the money, my father called me and said to initiate the transfer and I did outside of the bank near my bike. Then , I went directly to the haircut shop and did my haircut as well as trimmed the beard. I came home and had a bath and cleaned everything and watched the Sherlock web series while having my lunch. I had a good nap and when I woke up, my parents were there and they were looking groceries and arranging those groceries on shelves and cupboards. I read the two books in the afternoon and evening.those are murder n the orient express and the dscovery of india, actually, I completed reading the first book which I mentioned earlier. In the evening, I cleaned my water bottle and prepared the readymade french fries. I came to my terrace at around 6pm and read the book until the light faded out. After that, I started writing the diary while listening to the songs that are coming from the temple nearby our house. Right now, I will go home and have my dinner. Then , after some time, I will clean my face, apply some cream on my face, brush my teeth and watch web series.
